 That means that day one of the redemption period is the day after the dog was seized, not the day of. The end of the period would be the end of last day, theoretically 12 midnight. Therefore any other appropriate disposition of the dog could not take place until the next day.
 The required number of days of the redemption period depends on whether or not the dog seized was wearing a license tag. In a case where it was, the number of days is dependent on what manner the dco used to notify the owner. Please refer to Article 7 sections named above. | | adopted by the county. | |
